Thank you for participating in this workshop, in which we have explored the different ways in which our connections provide opportunities to improve interprofessional empathy. First, we learned about the concept of social contagion: how we influence and the relevance of the content to our own lives. Thirdly, we explored The Ladder of Influence to understand how we can have more control over our responses by questioning our assumptions about observations. And lastly, we offered an opportunity to spread the contagiousness of gratitude, recognizing that nobody achieves anything without a team.
